ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Since 1965, the Economic Development Administration's (EDA) statutory objective has been to promote the long-term recovery of economically depressed areas by generating and protecting jobs, and stimulating commercial and industrial growth in those areas. To achieve this goal, EDA awards grants and loan guarantees. In FY 1986, the Congress appropriated $175 million to continue EDA programs. In expending this appropriation, EDA placed increased emphasis on the economic development needs of rural areas, many of which have experienced high rates of farm loan foreclosures and have a need to establish economic diversity at the local level.

At the same time, EDA complied with the Administration's emphasis on debt recovery by collecting more than $100 million. Of the $28.9 million in public sector debts EDA collected in FY 1986, over $8 million was the result of resolving 364 grant debts. More intense servicing of 494 public works and development facility loans, having an outstanding principal balance of $219 million, resulted in the collection of the remaining $20 million.

Improved project management practices accounted for deobligations of $34.0 million. Of this amount, $11.1 million was in Regular Public Works projects, $5.1 million in Emergency Jobs Act projects, and $17.8 million in Local Public Works projects.

EDA program grants are expected to be awarded competitively on the basis of severe economic need or other prescribed criteria. However, in FY 1986 over $14.1 million or 8.0 percent of EDA's entire program appropriation was designated for legislatively mandated projects in Lexington County, South Carolina ($3.8 million); Fort Worth, Texas ($4.3 million); and for the Mississippi Institute of Technology ($6.0 million). It is highly unlikely that these Congressionally dictated projects would have received favorable consideration based upon normal criteria under which all applications should be judged. These projects would have failed to qualify for assistance either due to unemployment rates substantially lower than the typical applicant's, excessive costs given available EDA resources, or simply because they are not consistent with EDA programs.

Over the past several years, EDA has encountered a number of cases in which the grantees have failed to use real property, equipment, or loans created from revolving loan funds in the manner required by their grant agreements. In some cases, grantees have sold or mortgaged grant acquired or improved property. In other cases, not-for-profit grantees have filed for bankruptcy, and the bankruptcy courts have been unwilling or unable to recognize the legitimate interests of the Federal Government in the proceeds of grants. In order to avoid recurrences of these problems, EDA intends to secure its interests in real property, substantial equipment acquisitions and revolving loan funds with mortgages, liens, or other appropriate security interest. EDA believes that these are the only adequate means of protecting the Federal Government's interests and ensuring that tax dollars used for grants are administered as intended by law.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE

Public Works

EDA provides grants to help distressed areas build and develop essential public facilities and services under Titles I and IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965. The Agency provides public works grants for the construction or expansion of projects that will increase the potential for sustaining or creating permanent jobs. Typical projects include industrial parks, water and sewer system improvements, industrial access roads, vocational/technical education facilities, harbor and port development, business incubators, and other community development activities.

EDA awarded 173 grants for a total of $99.6 million in financial assistance under its Public Works and Development Facilities program to units of local government, Indian tribes, and nonprofit organizations. Funds were awarded on a 72/28 percent rural/urban split. Of the 173 grants, 43 projects totaling $20.7 million were Public Works Impact Program (PWIP) grants. The average grant awarded was $600,000. An additional $10 million grant, mandated in FY 1986 under a special Congressional appropriation, was awarded for the Oregon Health Sciences University Hospital in Portland, Oregon.

Business Development

At the close of FY 1986, EDA managed a $719 million loan portfolio. The portfolio contained $433 million in direct loans and acquired guarantees. The remaining $286 million represented the total for EDA in non-acquired guaranteed loans. Through aggressive servicing and liquidation efforts, EDA collected $71.3 million in business sector debts during the fiscal year. Included in this total was approximately $1 million derived from the sale of loans at present value.

Five new loan guarantees were approved for loans by private lending institutions to private borrowers in economically distressed areas. The total EDA exposure is $15.3 million.

IV

Each loan guarantee fully implemented EDA and OMB requirements that limit guarantees to 80 percent of a loan, require a guarantee fee payment, place the lender at risk for its portion of the loan, and require a reasonable assurance of repayment and full collateral coverage. In addition, with EDA advice, several proposed loans were restructured to allow lenders to make the loans without an EDA guarantee.

Technical Assistance

The flexible nature of the Technical Assistance program enables EDA to explore new avenues for developing job opportunities and to examine the feasibility of specific developmental efforts. The program is not limited to designated areas or development districts. It supports pilot projects in testing or launching wide-ranging programs. Technical assistance is provided through national organizations, professional and industry groups, and university centers, among others.

In its National Technical Assistance program, EDA funded 22 projects for approximately $1.9 million. EDA funds supported information dissemination, technical assistance to public entities and businesses, and demonstration of new economic development approaches. EDA obligations included $400,000 transferred from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to provide assistance to minority-led cities and counties. The University Center program provided support for 59 projects totaling almost $4.8 million. This included funds for 45 university centers. In addition, EDA funded 60 local technical assistance projects totaling approximately $1.3 million.

Planning

EDA supports planning efforts that are intended to respond to economic problems and take advantage of opportunities at the state, multicounty, and local levels. The Agency's funding assists economic development districts, urban areas, states and Indian tribes.

EDA awarded 482 grants totaling $25.6 million, which includes 38 grants to states for $2.3 million, 74 grants to urban areas for $4.2 million, 65 grants to Indian tribes for $3.1 million, and 305 grants to economic development districts for $16 million.

Research and Evaluation

EDA awarded 25 research grants totaling approximately $2 million for economic development studies including several studies of high-technology industry in a rural environment and an evaluation of EDA-funded local technical assistance projects. During the year, 28 research studies begun in previous years were completed. Other studies included an assessment of entrepreneurship as a rural economic development strategy and an examination of women's business programs.

Economic Adjustment

Title IX of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 authorizes EDA to provide special economic development and adjustment assistance in areas experiencing or threatened by sudden and severe economic dislocation (SSED), as well as areas suffering long-term economic deterioration (LTED).

EDA initiated a Revolving Loan Fund program under Title IX during FY 1978. The program provides grants to eligible applicants in areas exhibiting long-term economic deterioration. The grantee uses these funds to create/save jobs by making loans to small businesses. Loan repayments are placed in a revolving fund from which further loans will be made to advance the objectives of the revolving loan fund plan.

During FY 1986, EDA awarded 74 economic adjustment grants with a total value of more than $25 million. The SSED program provided more than $13 million to prepare and implement strategies in response to actual or threatened plant closures or layoffs. EDA obligated more than $12 million to establish 31 revolving loan funds under the LTED program.

IN THE TABLES that follow, "number of projects" indicates new approvals for the fiscal year. Dollar amounts may include obligations for new projects in the fiscal year, additional funds for projects approved in prior fiscal years, or both.

NOTE: Detail may not add to totals due to rounding.
